A LITERARY EFFORT.

'Are you satisfied, my daughter ?'

'More than satisfied, papa.'

'Is it all your fancy painted it ?'

'Beyond anything I ever dreamed of; indeed I never imagined that we should have such a beautiful home.'

'Then, my dear, I hope that you will be inclined to favor my wishes, in return for what I have done to please you. I have spared no expense in trying to make your home everything that the most fastidious taste could demand and I trust that you will not refuse some concession to my—whims, perhaps you will call them.'

'What is it you desire, papa ?'

'Nellie, I have given you every advantage in regard to education—have tried to make you a cultivated and accomplished woman—and now I do not want to see you throw yourself away upon any one who cannot appreciate you. In simple words, I want a clever son-in-law—a man able to write a good essay, or poem, or paint a picture worthy of notice and admiration.'

'But, papa, I love Charley, and he loves me.'

'Yes, my child, I suppose so; but you are both very young, and have seen little of the world. He did very well when we were plain, simple people, living in the country; but now it is quite different thing. We live in another world altogether. I do not demand money with your future husband—I have enough for all concerned—but talent I do require.'

'Oh, papa, I cannot give up Charley! Where shall I find another like him?—so good, and kind, and devoted ?'

'Thousands of them, my dear—thousands of them. He may not prove any better husband for being so devoted now. Matrimony is the thing that tries men's souls—and constancy.'

'I do not believe that Charley will deceive me—and he loved me too before we were rich. We never shall know, when a new lover comes, whether it is myself or my money he cares for.'

'Oh, well, my dear, young men are not all mercenary. There are plenty of fine, young fellows, ready to love you for your own sweet self.'

'Perhaps Charley can write !' mused Nellie. 'He never has tried, I know, and he may be a great genius without suspecting it. I am sure that he is clever enough to do almost anything.'

'Geniuses do not live to be twenty-five years old without suspecting their own powers. The trouble is generally that they are too eager to suspect them. But I promise you this, my daughter: If Charley can paint a good picture, or furnish a successful article for the paper, I will consent to the match.'

'Oh, Charlie,' the young girl said to her lover that night, 'can't you paint a picture ?'

'Paint a picture, Nell! Are you crazy ?'

'No, dear—but papa is—or else he has got a new hobby, which comes to nearly the same thing. I suppose he is aesthetic, and I think it is just awful. But now, dear, don't you think that you could paint something ?'

'Nellie, why don't you ask me if I can fly ?—like a bat, or a winged-squirrel ?'

'But every one paints now.'

'Indeed! How do they do it ?'

'They just buy paints, and brushes, and paletts, and take one or two lessons, and then they are ready to exhibit their plates, tiles, and so on. It is just as easy! You can paint anything you choose—birds, fishes, cranes—on one leg or two, just as you please—or little, uncertain landscapes. Every body does it—children, grown people, and grandmammas. And they all do it alike, pretty much—for I can see scarcely any difference in their little dauby things.'

'There is no use talking about it, Nell. I could not paint one of your little, dauby things if I took lessons six years.'

'Then you must write something. I know by your forhead that you have latent talent, which only needs development.''

'My dear Nell, all the development in the world would never bring out any talent in my case. I hope that I have good, common-sense—but cleverness don't run in the Barrett family.'

'But, Charly, you must either paint a picture or write a talented article !'

'My darling, I am afraid that you are touched here—just a little, you know;' and he laid his finger on her white forehead with an air of such deep concern that she burst into a fit of laughter, in which he quickly joined. As soon as she could speak, she told him what her father required, and was surprised to see how gravely he took it.

'Why, how serious you do look !' she exclaimed.

'It is a pretty serious affair, I should think !' he replied. 'To lose you——'

'But you are not going to lose me. You will write an article for the paper—a successful one, too.'

'Nellie, I tell you again, dear, that I have no literary talent whatever. It has been pretty hard sometimes even to write letters to you, whom I love better than all the world. How then could I write a successful story ?'

'Couldn't you write a pretty poem then ?'

'Horrible! Ask me something reasonable—to swim a thousand miles, or kill half a dozen tigers—but write a poem! Good heavens, Nell, it's enough to make a poor fellow commit suicide! I could no make a rhyme to save my life—or even your life, darling.'

'Now it cannot be so very hard! A little poem upon spring, for instance, to begin with. Something about budding leaves, and perfumes of the sod, and young men's hopes, and aching voids, and all that sort of thing.'

'It gives me an aching void to think of it! And the rhymes! Oh, Nell! the rhymes !'

'Take a dictionary—some poets do that. Find a number of appropriate words to rhyme in pairs, put them down on the paper, and then write up to them.'

'But where does the sentiment come in ?'

'Oh, that must work in of itself.'

'It is a hopeless case, darling. I am very sorry that I am not a genius—but nature did not make me one, you know. And a poem ? Oh, it's fearful !'

'A story then, Charley—you surely could write a story ?'

'Stories must have plots, Nell, and plots do reqiurp some imagination.''

'But can't you tell something that has happened to your friends ? Truth is stranger than fiction, you know.'

'Farmers' boys are not apt to have many adventures, Nell. My friends in the country did nothing more romantic than digging turnips and potatoes.'

'But did you never have any thrilling experiences yourself, Charley ?'

'This is the most thrilling experience in my life, and I hope that it will be the last one of that nature.'

'Perhaps you had better try an essay ?'

'Jerusalem !'

'Charles Barrett, if you get so near to swearing as that, I shall leave the room !'

'Forgive me, Nell; but will you tell me what subject you would suggest for that—that—essay ?'

'Something metaphysical of course—'Persistence of Force,' 'Relativity of Knowledge,'—something profound, you see. I always did think that you had a kind of metaphysical look about your forehead.'

'Will you tell me what kind of a look that is?' he asked going to the glass, and examining his face with a somewhat anxious expression.

'Well,' answered Nellie, 'it is a sort of misty——'

'Oh, no, dear—not so bad as that, I hope !'

'Well, I wish you would not take me up so quickly !'

'Oh, Nellie, I am an idiot—that is the truth—but it cannot be helped.'

'It must be helped, or we shall be separated forever.'

'Let's run away, and get married !'

'No, I cannot do that—papa has been too good and kind. It would break his heart. I could not be so ungrateful, after all that he has done to make me happy. Charley, you will have to write a story, because that will be the easiest. Go home now, and think harder than you ever did before, and the ideas must come. Remember that our happiness is at stake.''

Poor Charley went home in a desperate state of mind. After he had reached his room, he locked his door, took off his coat, that he might breathe more freely, lighted his meerschaum, placed a sheet of clean, white paper before him, sharpened his pencil to the finest point, and then knocked his head violently in hopes that wit would come After looking at the paper wistfully for about ten minutes, a brilliant idea almost took his breath away, and he wrote quickly, for fear that it might escape as suddenly as it came.

'There was once a young and very beautiful girl.'

But after writing that he stopped short, and again waited patiently for further inspiration. It did not come; and, throwing down his pen in disgust, he cried:

'The old man is crazy, and I am an idiot: I'll go to bed !' which he accordingly did; and in a few minutes was sound asleep, literary efforts having exhausted him completely.

In the morning he woke up with that uncomfortable feeling that we have at times of something very disagreeable awaiting us; and after a few moments he sprung from the bed exclaiming:

'It is that confounded story. I wonder if I can do anything this morning.'

Dressing himself quickly, he again seated himself resignedly, and after looking at the paper a short time, he went to work, and absolutely wrote one whole page.

He was triumphant, and began to think that he might have mistaken his own powers after all.

'I'll take it to Nell after breakfast,' he said, 'and let her read it It is not such a bad beginning, I am sure.'

So, with a more hopeful countenance he ate his breakfast, and then started off to show his first effort to Nellie. Her face beamed as she took the paper; but after reading a few words, she looked up inquiringly.

'Eyes as blue as spring, Charley ? What special part of spring did you mean dear ?'

'Skies, of course. You didn't suppose I meant grass and leaves, did you ? I hate green eyes !'

'Then let me put in skies. Her luxuriant yellow hair hung in heavy masses down to her heels !' Goodness !' you wouldn't have her go round the streets with her hair hanging down to her heels ? How she would look !'

'It would be splendid! And see here, Nell, if you're going to criticise me in that way, it's a little too much. I don't believe you could do any better yourself.'

'Perhaps not; but I should know enough of ordinary propriety not to let a young woman go marching round the city with her sandy hair dangling down to her heels.'

'I did not say anything about her marching through the city. And I tell you that I'll not try to write if you make fun of me in that way. Sitting up half the night to write a story, just because your father is such and old——'

'Stop, Charles Barrett, right off! I'll not have my dear good father abused; and if you're so awfully stupid that you cannot even write——'

'Yes, yes—now abuse me, because I'm not another Bulwer or Dickens! I'll go home, and you may find another, and more clever——'

He had almost reached the door, when Nellie sprung after him, and, throwing her arms around his neck, begged his forgiveness in a way that would have melted the heart of Diogenes himself.

Of course Charles capitulated immediately; and a little osculatory performance was gone through with, which seemed to be wonderfully soothing to both parties.

Then they went back to the story, and Nellie continued:

''She was called Violetta, because her eyes were like the summer violets.' But, Charley, dear, aren't we mixing up the seasons a little ? Just now you said her eyes were like spring.'

'Well, erase it, if you choose—only there'll be another space to fill up.'

'Say that they called her Violetta, because her eyes were so blue. That will take up nearly as much room. 'She was gentle, tender, docile and submissive.' Now, Charley, you need not imagine that I am going to be so terribly submissive. I have a mind of my own.'

'But I was not thinking of you.'

'Who were you thinking of then, I should like to know ?'

'Violetta, of course.'

'Oh, yes. I suppose heroines must be docile and submissive, unless they are regular shrews. But I do like to see women with a little spirit. 'She wore a simple white muslin (that everlasting white muslin! she thought), with rosebuds fastened in her hair.' But you know she could not fasten flowers in her hair, unless it was braided, or tied up in some way! Braid it up; won't you, Charley ?'

'Now, my dear, if you are going to alter everthing just as fast as I write it I may as well stop where I am.''

At this Nellie finished the page without further suggestions; but when he had given her his twentieth good-bye kiss, she looked up in his face and whispered coaxingly:

'Braid up Violetta's hair; won't you dear ?'

'Confound that girl's hair! Do it any way you please. Braid it, bang it, dye it—do what you choose—only don't let us have any more quarrels.'

And as Nellie went to her room afterwards, she laughed to herself as she repeated:

''Hair hanging down to her heels.' How she would look! It is just like a man. It makes me think of the shavings I used to fasten on my head when I was a little girl. Poor Charley! it is hard for him; but he will do it, I know.'

And indeed it was hard for the poor fellow. He never worked so indefatigably in all his life. He absolutely grew thin over that article. But he finished it at last. It certainly was a very remarkable story. The plot was quite equal to the details. The expensive and elaborate toilettes in which Violetta indulged, would have ruined a first-class actress; and the minuteness with which each sash, ribbon and button was described might have immortalized some disciple of Worth himself; but, as he said, it helped to fill up the pages, which of course was the main thing.

'You are not going to kill Violetta, are you, Charley ?' Nellie inquired, one day, with evident concern.

'Kill her ?' he repeated, savagely; 'indeed I do intend it! I should like to stab her—poison her—torture her in the most horrible manner—in return for all the misery she has occasioned me.'

'Oh, I would not kill her! People always take to have stories end well.'

'Nellie, I must have my own way in this—for it will be the only satisfaction that I can have in the whole thing! And it must be no easy death either! I read once of a woman who was walled up to her throat, and then left to perish. If I could think of something equally horrible I should begin to consider myself quite a genius.'

And he did kill Violetta, sure enough; but he compromised with Nellie, and allowed her to die respectably and comfortably in her bed, with her disconsolate friend weeping in a circle around her.

When it was all finished, he literally danced for joy.

Then he took it to his loving critic, who copied it very neatly and eligibly, making some discreet alterations, especially in regard to the stupendous toilettes, as she termed them.

'Now, Charley,' she said, 'it is very nice, and will be a success, I am sure. Where do you intend to take it ?'

'I shall take it to Rob Hunter, who has charge of the story-department of his paper; and he will accept it, I think. If he demurs at all, I shall offer him fifty dollars to publish it.'

'But isn't that rather an unusual proceeding, Charley ?'

'Well, this is an unusual story, you know, and we cannot expect to make our arrangements in the ordinary way entirely.

However, the desired object was accomplished; and then Nellie went to a friend, in another editorial office, and asked her to copy the sketch, and to try to get it copied by some other papers also.

'But, Nellie,' said the lady, 'this is not a striking effort. Did one of your friends write it ?'

'Yes,' she answered, with a blush; and then she told the circumstances, fully and frankly.

'Well, I will copy it,' was the good-natured reply; 'but, if I were you, I would advise Mr. Barrett not to write anything more of the kind.'

'No fear of that,' she answered, with a merry laugh.

The story being copied into the two papers, Nellie took them all to her father, who examined them very carefully, but with a somewhat dubious expression upon his face.

'Yes, daughter,' he said, 'this seems a very successful story; but if I were Charley, I would not try another, because he might not be as successful a second time.'

He always felt that he had been slightly imposed upon; but when he saw what a good, kind husband Charley was, and how happy he made Nellie, the old gentleman gradually became reconciled.

And when his little grandchild, at the early age of five years, absolutely composed four lines of poetry, he was convinced that a genius had at last been born to them, and his happiness knew no bounds.

Popping Corn.

And there they sat a popping corn, John Stiles and Susan Cutter, John Stiles as fat as any ox, and Susan fat as butter. And there they sat and shelled the corn, and raked and stirred the fire, and talked of different kinds of ears, and hitched their chairs up nigher. Then Sunsan, the popper shook, and John he shook the popper, till both their faces grew as red as saucepan made of copper. And they shelled, and popped, and ate, all kinds of fun in poking, and he haw-hawed at her remarks, and she laughed at his joking. And still they popped, and still they ate; John's mouth was like a hopper, and stirred the fire and sprinkled salt, and shook and shook the popper. The clock struck nine and then struck ten, and still the corn kept popping; it struck eleven—then struck twelve, and still no sign of stopping. And John he ate, and Susan thought—the corn did pop and patter; till he cried out: "The corn's afire! Why, Susan, what's the matter ?" Said she: "John Stiles, it's one o'clock; You'll die of indigestion; I'm sick of all this popping corn—Why don't you pop the question ?"

It takes twenty-six years for a man to become a physician in Germany. It takes a good deal longer than that for some in this country to become physicians.

A New Crime Under the Sun.

When old Anderson Brumley announced himself as candidate for justice of the peace, the people of Buck Short township felt that the time when they were to have an able and upright administration of judicial affairs had arrived. Old Brumley had never opened a law book; therefore he was regarded as honest. He had never hesitated to take off his coat and fight the best man in the neighborhood; therefore he was considered able. He had never been backward in denouncing his enemies; consequently he was regarded as a citizen of wisdom. With these accomplishments, his election, in the expressive parlance of politics, was a "walk over." Shortly after Brumley took his seat on the red oak woolsack, a man named Billy Malone was arrested for stealing a grindstone.

'This here is a mighty important case,' said the magistrate, when the culprit had been arraigned before court. In lookin' over these here law books, I don't find no mention of grind-stones. It was a big oversight in our legislature not to put down grind-stones in the books, fur it mout have been knowed that some blamed rascal in this part o' the state was agoin' to steal one. Folks in this here part of the country, let me tell you, will steal anything. Wa'al in the absence o' any statuary burin' on the subjeck, reckon I'll make this here charge manslaughter in the first degree.'

'Your honor,' said a lawyer, 'that would be impossible.'

'Would it ?' Wa'al I'll jes show you I'm running this here court.'

'Your honor—'

'Call me jedge, if you please.'

'Well, judge, there is no such thing as manslaughter in the first degree.'

'Ain't thar ?' Well, I'll jes show you I'm running this here court. Prisoner at the bar, I have longed fur a opportunity o' teachin' a lesson to the risin' generation. You have given me that chance. I don't delight in seein' a man fall from grace, but when he does fall, thar ain't nothin' that pleases me so much as to tangle my hand in the ruffles o' his calico shirt. Manslaughter is a mighty serious charge, young feller.'

'I ain't slaughtered no man, yit, jedge.'

'Shet your mouth, impudent violater o' the sacred law o' the land. No matter what you done, an' when a man disputes my word, w'y he'd better wish that his bones was made outen Injun rubber an' his back kivered with the skin o' a yalligator. Young outrager o' the principles o' civilization, for this great crime of manslaughter in the fust degree, I sentences you to be hung next Friday.'

'Judge,' exclaimed the lawyer, springing to his feet, 'this proceeding is impossible.'

'Is it ? Wa'al I'll jest show you I'm runnin' this court. When you get to be a jedge, I won't come aroun' tellin' you what you can do an' what you can't.'

'Great Caesar, judge, such a course as you are taking is a violation of the State Constitution.'

'It it ? Wa'al I'll jes repeal the State Constitution right here. This feller oughter be hung, an' if I had catch him ten days ago, whuther or not he had committed manslaughter in the fust degree or stole a grind-stone in the second, which is the same, I would have sentenced him to be hung. Mr. Constable take charge o' this man, an' see that he is hung up in a respectable manner. Any lawyer what don't wanter be served in the same way had better keep his mouth shet. I'm runnin' this court.'

A Frightened Lark.

We can vouch for the accuracy of the following very unusual circumstance: While Mr. Alexander Shaw was in the fields the other day he heard cries of a bird apparently in distress. Looking up he saw a lark hotly pursued by a hawk, which, by a series of fierce dashes, tried to secure his prey; but the lark was successful in evading the attacks. The hawk, however, was gaining the mastery, and the lark, terror-struck, seeing the man below, came down like an arrow and fluttered actually into his hand, where it cowered trembling. The pursuer followed until within six yards, but seeing what had occurred it flew off in disgust.

The circumstance is remarkable as showing the how greater terror conquered the less, the instinct of preservation in the bird triumphing over its natural timidity.—Elgin [Scotland] Courant.

Strangers are surprised to see New Orleans policemen in full uniform drinking at beer bars with hoodlums and smoking cigars on their beats while on duty. The New York policeman sneaks around to a back door to get his smoke and drink; but he has some style about him when he walks his beat.

Governor Pattison vetoed the bill demanding a greater number of Magistrates than the law provides at present.

THE bill appropriating $10,000 for Pennsylvania's display at the New Orleans exposition was defeated in the house. The state will have to exhibit without financial aid.

Hon. A. G. Curtin on the Floor.

The following dispatch to the Philadelphia Times, dated Washington, Jan. 31st., tells us of the untiring interest and clear views which our able congressman from this district takes of all important and beneficial questions concerning the welfare and prosperity of this great country:

Governor Curtin introduced a b illa few days ago providing for testing of steel under government supervision. In regard to his plan Governer Curtin said to day that he thought the time had arrived when the country should be on a footing which would enable it to build its own naval vessels, make its own guns out of its own material, which is in abundance. The government was about to branch out and build steel ships of war. These ships would have to be armed with steel guns.

"Now is the time," remarked Governor Curtin, "for the government to show some interest in the manufacture of steel in this country. It can be made here as well as it can be made in England. It costs $350 per ton for a certain character of English steel delivered here. That same quality can be made here for from $150 to $175 per ton if the government will lend a hand to proper tests of its manufacture I want to see Congress appropriate $25,000, or such other sum as may be necessary, for experimenting in steel manufacture with the idea of at once opening up a market for the product of our mines and mills and render us independent of foreign production. That is the sort of protection I favor. The government is paying out large sums of money in experimenting in best sugar, in tea culture, in sorghum, in a great variety of tests of material and manufacture. There is no one of these interests of half the importance of the steel industry, where lasting benefit to the navy, army and the consumers of machinery of all kinds follow in its train. Some day we will be at war for foreign powers and will have to build, arm and equip vessels out of our own material and with our own workmen. We ought to keep pace with the rest of the world." Governor Curtin will try and get his measure tacked on some appropriation bill.

The Wife-Beater Bill.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 29.—Senator Adams, who introduced by request only the Senate bill establishing the whipping-post for wife-beaters, came forward boldly to-day as the champion of the measure. It had been negatively reported by the judiciary special committee and he offered a resolution placing the bill on the calendar, so that it might at least be discussed in the Senate. He did not want it choked off. In speaking on the resolution he told of the scores of letters he has received within the past two weeks from injured wives and from Judges and men of experience in all parts of the State. He had been forced to the conclusion that the whipping-post is a necessity for the further protection of women. "Without the whipping-post," he said, "there is no other way to punish the hounds who beat women. For such men there is no terror in a warm, comfortable prison, and while bad husbands are kept in the jails their wives, perhaps, are suffering additional woes from being deprived of the usual support. But the cowardly hounds who would beat women, forgetting that they were nurtured in their infantile helplessness by a mother's care, would of all men be most readily restrained by fear of the lash upon their backs." The only objection that could be urged to this bill, he said, was that it would be a step backward. He thought, however, that a man who would beat a woman puts himself out of the reach of ordinary laws. Nothing but the lash could control his best nature.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3, 1885.

At a low estimate the Capitol at Washington has cost first and last $20,000,000, and yet there is not a fire proof room in the huge building from cellar to garret. A few years ago, and in open day, a fire broke out in the Congressional Library and destroyed its entire contents, comprising books, maps and charts that could never be replaced, because there were no appliances at hand with which to extinguish the flames. This lesson, entailing a loss of some forty thousand of the best books obtainable, should have prompted Congress to furnish some fire-proof structure for its library, its records and the valuable historical and statistical achieves that are now scattered about in forty different tinder boxes throughout the city. The other day a citizen from the country visiting the dome of the Capitol looked over the railing and saw flames bursting through the roof directly over the House of Representatives, just as that body was assembled for its daily session. Before the aforesaid citizen could give an alarm, and before the thirty able-bodied Capitol policemen could get a bucket of water to the scene of destruction, the fire had made sad havoc with the walls and ceiling of the room in which it originated, and in which were stored the valuable records of the first Congress of the United States, and those pertaining to the Congresses from 1790 to 1800. Had this fire broken out in the night-time, it is just possible that no vestige of the nation's Capitol would remain at this moment. PHONO.

Miscellaneous News.

The yield of wheat in the United States for 1884 was 513,000,000 bushels, and 1,795,000,000 bushels of corn, so says the bureau of agriculture.

Dynamite in New York.

An explosion of dynamite took place on Sunday morning at 2 o'clock in Garry Bros.' dry goods store, New York, greatly damaging the building. The explosion is blamed on the Equality Association, a body composed of discharged and striking clerks. Several arrests have been made and more are to follow.

MORE DYNAMITE.—Pittsburg, Pa., is greatly disturbed by the discovery of a strong dynamite element, which is said to await any propitious moment for an outbreak. The general opinion is that there is danger brewing.

O'Donoyan Rossa, the man of dynamite fame in New York was shot by a young woman, named Yeslet Dudley, on Monday last. He is still alive. He was on the pavement at the time the deed was done. The woman is 25 years of age, of a very lady-like appearance and conducts herself in a very cool and collected manner. The ball from her revolver entered the back of the victim.

A Safe Blown Open.

LOCK HAVEN, Jan. 29.—The stores of Jacob Stuber and Swenk & Co. were entered by burglars last night. Stuber's safe was blown open and $3000 in money taken, together with some checks, notes and private papers. Swenk & Co. lost nearly $500 worth of goods. The police have no clue to the robbers, but it is believed that they are professionals from some large city.

Thousands of Dead Cattle.

What a Correspondent of a Chicago Paper Saw in the Far West.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—The Tribune has the following from a correspondent at Miller's Camp, Indian Territory: "I started from Caldwell, Kansas, on the 27th ultimo, Oklahome, in a spring wagon, with a guide, two runners and four horses. The trail is snowed up and there were no landmarks to go by. Scattered all along the trail are hundreds of carcasses of dead cattle. The first night we stopped at Ranch 101, known as George Miller's. Mr. Miller is considered the richest cattle man in the Indian Territory, having upwards of 15,000 cattle. Many of them are starving. He now has a large number of extra cow boys gathering them up and is shipping them to the states to feed. Ranch 101 is twenty-two miles from Caldwell and ten miles from the Salt Forks river. Hatch and his forces camped near this place the first night they were in the territory, and it has been erroneously reported that they swam the Salt Forks. The fact is they camped on its banks till the river went down. The whole of the Indian territory is covered with about five inches of snow. The report that the Cherokee strip and Oklahoma have never been surveyed is untrue. I have counted any number of section corner-stones. It is stated that there are over one million herd of cattle in the Cherokee strip. If the present cold weather holds out a week longer one-half of these will perish. Over a third of a million are already dead."

Attention, Doctors.

Everybody knows that the life of the average physician is a hard one. He is often compelled to ride great distances through mud and rain for a merely nominal fee. It is not fit nor proper for us to condemn any physician for his work, but we do assert that his practice can be made easier, and he can effect more cures by the proper and judicious use of PERUNA. If he will only add this great remedy to his list of medicines, he will find that his usefulness will be greatly increased. Full direction for its use will be found in the "Ills of Life," and he should at once procure this valuable book.

N. J. Wright, Business Agent Evening Herald, Erie, Pa., says: "DR. HARTMAN—I can not but feel it my duty to express to you my thanks for the great benefit I received from the use of your medicines, PERUNA and MANALIN. One bottle of each placed me square on my feet, after a sickness of four weeks, which confined me to my bed, and then left me lame and crippled. Three days from the commencement of the use of your remedies the cane was dispensed with, and in a week I was perfectly well."

Mrs. Ellen Maynard, Oswego, Potter county, Pa., writes: "DR. HARTMAN, Columbus, O. The small ulcers are all healed, and the two large ones are not more than half as large as they were. I am feeling quite well. The people say your PERUNA and MANALIN are doing a miracle. I do not take nearly so much opium as I did before."

Joseph Thomas, East Brady, Pa., writes: "I have used your PERUNA and MANALIN with good results. In the year of 1880 I was so bad that I could scarcely walk. I used PERUNA and MANALIN, and am now as healthy as I have ever been. I have also recommended it to several parties, and they have been much benefited by it."

Mr. C. H. Harris, New Vienna, Ohio, writes: "Our little girl was paralyzed at thirteen months old, and we resorted to everything we could hear of for relief, but she appeared to get but little better. Hearing of PERUNA we concluded to try it, and will say it has done her a great deal of good—the first bottle apparently giving aid and relief. We have used it for nervousness in other cases on other persons and found it a success. For general debility, and in fact for any disease, we don't think anything else can at all compare with it. We have used forty or fifty bottles, and our house is never without PERUNA. Our little girl is now eight years old, and can run any place, was for four years helpless. PERUNA cured her."

The great Peter Cooper is credited with the following rare bit of common sense:

"In all towns where a newspaper is published, every man should advertise, even if nothing more than a card telling his name and business in which he is engaged. It not only pays the advertiser, but lets people at a distance know that the town you reside in has a prosperous class of business men. As the seed is sown so it recompenses. Never pull down the sign while you intend to do business, for it often indicates that your grip, commercially, is broken. The judicious advertiser will receive, in return, ten dollars for every one invested in the columns of a local paper."

Earthquake Ravages.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The consul of the United States at Malaga reports to the department of the state in regard to recent earthquakes in Spain that fifty villages have been destroyed and 2000 lives have been lost. He also says that not less than 30,000 persons have quitted the city of Malaga and the rest of the population sleep in the open air. The death rate from disease has increased 300 per cent. At Joyena, a small river which ran through the town has entirely disappeared.

At Albanuclas the earth opened, swallowing the church and other buildings so that nothing remains in sight but the weather cock of the church spire. Two hundred bodies have already been taken from the ruins.

At Velez-Malaga the prison, churches, convents and city hall have all been leveled to the ground. Processions headed by the clergy are constantly passing through the streets the rich and the poor alike kneel in the mud in the pouring rain and cry aloud for mercy.

MUCH FOR LITTLE.—In this age when the events of yesterday in all parts of the world are found in to-day's paper; when tidings of a battle in Egypt or China are flashed across the seas and laid at our door before its smoke is dissipated, it is necessary for well-informed people to have access to reliable maps. Not all can afford the heavy library atlases, and even they are often found untrustworthy unless a new copy is purchased as often as revised.

If you want an atlas, small enough for general use, full enough for nearly every purpose, critically accurate and up to date, we recommend the new Handy Atlas of the World, published by Messrs. Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor, & Co., 753 and 755 Broadway, New York, which is both a credit to them and to the American Press. It is bound in flexible cloth, contains 38 beautifully colored maps and important statistics. Among its many notable good things are maps showing standard time, the railways of the United States, recent polar expeditions, Central Africa as explored by Stanley, the seat of the Egyptian war, Bible Lands, and our principal American cities. If your bookseller does not have this excellent work, send fifty cents direct to the publishers and receive it by return mail.

Lovett's Guide to Fruit Culture.

Of all the publications of nurserymen there is no other that can be compared with Lovett's Guide to Fruit Culture. It is really a valuable work on Horticulture, giving, as it does, full instructions for planting, pruning, culture and management of fruits of all kinds, and impartial descriptions of all worthy varieties. It is a book of over 70 pages, with an illuminated cover, elegantly printed and embellished with hundreds of engravings and several colored plates true to nature. Price, with colored plates, 10 cts; without plates, 5 cts. Everybody at all interested in fruit culture should send to J. T. Lovett, Little Silver, New Jersey, and get a copy.

—The Mt. Carmel News says that Mr. Lemuel Shipman has suspended all work on the reservoir at that place, and has taken his best workmen to Centre county to work on the railroad. This indicates an early completion of the L. & T. railroad.—Lewisburg Journal.

—Mr. Thos. R. Zeigler, agent for the estate of S. B. Zeigler, will offer at public sale at Rebersburg the real estate consisting of a town lot with a large brick house thereon, and also lots south of Rebersburg as well as valuable woodland convenient to said town. See bills.

—That valuable annual "The Philadelphia Times Almanac" for 1885 has come to our office and it fully equips our table. There is no more complete and convenient work of its kind published anywhere and the book, containing 96 leaves, in indispensible as a means reference and information.

—Our friend, Mr. C. A. Sturgis, of Lewisburg, presented his little daughter, Bessie, with a splendid life-size crayon portrait of her deceased mother. The picture is finely executed and is a striking likeness of the late Mrs. Sturgis. It will be Bessie's most valuable heir-loom and an adornment to Mrs. Walter's parlor.

—WHEN your children are threatened with croup or whooping-cough, beware how you lull them to sleep with cough syrups whose principle ingredients are morphia or opium. The natural effort of the lungs to expel the suffocating mucus is coughing. Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine contains no morphia or opium in any form, and by its stimulating actions on the kidneys, bowels, and pores of the skin, more than any other remedy, assists Nature in breaking up and expeling the worst colds from the system. MERCHANT TAILOR AT MILLHEIM.—Mr. I. E. Couldron, of Shamokin, Pa., called on us yesterday, and informed us that he will move to Millheim on or about the 1st of April. Mr. Couldron is an experienced and skillful merchant tailor and expects to open shop in D. W. Zeigler's house on Main street, next door to Kauffman's store. Welcome.

—The Ladies' Mite Society of the Lutheran church at this place held their annual election of officers last Monday evening with the following result: Mrs. Mary R. Harter, President: Mrs. Sadie Smith, Vice President; Mrs. B. O. Deininger, Secretary; Mrs. Emma Frank, Treasurer. The society began its fourth year with a fair membership.

SUPERIOR LEATHER.—During our stay in Bellefonte, beginning of this week, we heard it acknowledged by the largest dealers there that A J. Harter's leather from Millheim is considered to be the best in the market as to quality and finish. This is certainly a splendid recommendation and will not fail to give our neighbor, Mr. Harter a good trade. Call on him at his shop, on Penn street.

—We call the attention of our readers to the new advertisement of Mauck's furniture establishment on Penn street. They will maintain their reputation for selling only the best articles in the market and for as low a price as possible. We would say here that their store is the best place in the county to buy furniture, outside of Bellefonte. Call on them, when in need of anything.

—Mr. S. D. Musser, who for about five years held the office of postmaster in Millheim, resigned his position the other day, and his partner, Mr. J. C. Smith was appointed in his place. As far as we are concerned we were not anxious for a change by any means, but since circumstances have made it so, we must say that the newly appointed postmaster is just the man for the place. We tip our hat Mr. P. M.

—Mr. B. O. Deininger, the proprietor of the JOURNAL Book and Stationery store, is almost continually ordering new goods and persons in need of Blank Books, School Supplies, Bibles, Albums, Stationery, or anything in his line will find a complete assortment and a superior quality of goods at low prices at his store in the JOURNAL building, Penn street, Millheim. Call and be convinced.

FESTIVAL OF SONG.—A musical convention will be held in the Evangelical church of Millheim, commencing Monday, Feb. 16th and closing with two grand concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings following. Prof. P. H. Meyer, of Linden Hall will be musical director, and Prof. Harry J. Kurzenknabe, of Millheim, organist. Proceeds to go to the town clock fund. For further particulars see posters.

FOR RENT.—That well known store stand at Farmer's Mills with dwelling house, bank barn and about 15 acres of farm land. This is a desirable business location in an excellent farming neighborhood, convenient to churches, schools and railroad. If so desired the store stand will be rented separate from the other property.

—High Constable A. Harter has his official notice posted at all public places, to the qualified electors of the borough of Millheim, that an election will be held in the Public School House on Penn street on Tuesday, Feb. 17th, 1885 to elect the following officers: 2 persons for councilmen, 2 for school directors, 1 person for chief burgess, 1 for assistant chief burgess, 1 for constable, 1 for High Constable, 1 for Overseer of the Poor, 1 for Assessor, 1 for auditor, 1 for Judge of Election, 2 persons for Inspectors of Elections.

—Last Sunday morning the family of Mrs. Annie Wertz, residing on east Seventh street, this place, were discovered in an insensible condition from the effects of gas from a coal stove. The daughter had arisen in the morning in a dazed condition and fell down the stairs. The noise attracted neighbors who burst open the door and found the rest of the family, consisting of the mother, son and visiting lady, in an unconscious state. The house was thoroughly ventilated and a physician summoned. He stated that a few minutes more would have proved fatal in at least one of the cases. They are now recovering. It seems they had filled the stove before retiring, and had turned the damper before the fresh coal had thoroughly caught fire, and in this way sent the gas into the room. This is a lesson that all can profit by.—Lewisburg Journal Jan. 28,

At a fire of the livery and boarding stables of Charles F. Smith at Philadelphia, last Friday morning, 38 valuable horses were burned to death; besides 150 carriages, wagons and sleighs, 80 sets of harness and a large quantity of hay and feed were consumed by the flames. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Letter from Kansas.

Pleasant Valley, Jan. 26th 1885.
EDITOR of the JOURNAL:

As I have not written anything for your worthy paper for the past year, I would ask you for a little space in your columns. Your paper is a weekly welcome visitor at our home, but I hardly ever see anything in it from this part of Kansas, so I thought that a few words might be of some interest to our many friends in Penns valley, who are readers of your JOURNAL. We had an extraordinary cold winter so far. Ever since the 20th of December it was very cold and we had a great deal of snow, more than we had the four past winters together, since we are in the county. Mr. Editor I often wish for one of my bob sleds, that I used to have in old Penns valley, I would make good use of it. But I don't want your readers to think that we have no sleds in Kansas. I venture to say that if you would see all the different styles and patterns of sleds you would laugh. We have at present writing about 6 inches of snow and the wind blowing cold from the North, with good indications of more snow. It keeps us busy to haul and cut wood to keep warm and to attend to our stock. This is a severe winter on Kansas stock. Hundreds of cattle have died from the cold and for want of shelter and feed. So many stock men here have no shedding for their stock at all. The poor animals are exposed to all the storms and very often do not get half the feed they ought to have, which is all carelessness on the stockmen's side. Feed is always plenty with us for cattle. Our crops were very good of all kinds last year. I wish, Mr. editor, that our Penns valley farmers could have seen the wheat stacks and rye and oats and barley and the tremendous crop of corn. Thousands of acres of wheat made 45 to 55 bushels to the acre and some claimed they thrashed 60 bushels to the acre. I had some on my farm that went 45 bushels to the acre. And then the amount that went to waste you have no idea of at all. But to test the truth of my statements you can ask my worthy friend H. E. Duck, of Millheim, who honored us so highly with a very pleasant and much enjoyable visit. As we were riding over our beautiful Kansas land together and over the grainfields he may be able to give you a faint idea of the grain that went to waste in Kansas. I will give you an account of the crops we raised on our farms. We had 130 acres of wheat and thrashed 3300 bushels and I am sure there were 500 bushels wasted on account of extreme wet weather. We had 70 acres of rye and thrashed 1400 bushels and there was fully 75 wasted on the field. 70 Bushels oats, 200 bushels barley and 2000 bushels corn shelled. But, after having such a pile of grain, until expences are all paid, there isn't much profit in it. Wheat was sold here as low as 20 cts. per bushel. Best wheat now brings 60 and 65 cts. per bushel, rye 20 cts corn 20 cts oats 22 cts and barley 30 cts. Times are dull and money scarce, I have 85 head of cattle, 9 head of horses and 30 head of hogs. Stock is on the downward road in price, and bound to come down more. Kansas land is in great demand. Land buyers are very numerous and land is wild in price. All grades of land have raised over ⅓ in value in the last 9 months. Emigrants are coming in from all parts of the world and are seeking homes. But there is still plenty of room for more. Should any of our Penns valley friends wish a nice home we say to them, come, here is the place to get them, and cheap yet. A man with industry and snap and some self denial can secure for himself a nice home, where he can never get one in the eastern states where land is high. Elmer my son was thrashing since the middle of July right along till the middle of Dec. 84 and has to thrash for 6 weeks yet. He thrashed over 30,000 bushels besides our own. He has more then paid for his machine. Well now, I must close my lengthy letter or else I weary you. This leaves us all well and in good spirits. Kindest regards to you and all old friends in Penns valley.

Yours fraternally,
P. B. STOVER.

THE MOST REMARKABLE CASE OF ALL.—A gentleman writes to us from Philipsburg, Centre Co., Pa., that his little girl was horribly afflicted with scrofula. Her body was full of sores, ears discharging continually thick yellow purtrid matter, and her eyes so swollen and inflamed as to be almost blind. One Bottle McDonald's Blood Purifier has to all appearances entirely cured her. Our neighbors as well as ourselves consider the cure remarkable. A bonafide case. The address of the family can be obtained from the editor of this paper.

—Many of my customers are acquainted with the fact that for sometime past I have been the only member of the firm of Benson, Maule & Co. The world-wide reputation of this firm's name as sending out none but the best of seeds, has been so great that I have heretofore hesitated to change it, but now that the name of Maule is almost equally as well-known, I decided January 15th, 1885, to change the name of our firm from that of Benson, Maule & Co., to simply Wm Henry Maule. Very truly, WM. HENRY MAULE, proprietor.

—THE horrible nauseous worm-seed vermifuges and worm syrups have had their day. Birthday, surprise, and other parties are still going on, and our young folks don't seem to tire of it.

We think the "Mountain Boy" might as well show his colors in regard to the school affairs. It is very singular, that the directors do not make a better choice of teachers. It is really no wonder that some of the citizens growl about the teachers in some of the districts. Turn the rascals out.

---FOR CASH---

Believing that the people of Centre county are fully awake to their best interests and that they have the intelligence to comprehend and the courage to recognize the means best calculated to bring about the most desirable results, we would most confidently and earnestly submit the following for your careful consideration:

That king credit has slain its victims by the thousands upon its extended battle fields is a fact beyond successful contradiction, and we would only ask you to call to your recollections your own observations in proof of this fact, and, the pitiful appeals of those still under the crushing heel of the tyrant fall upon our ears with unmistable certainty and we would say, come, let us rush to their rescue by wielding the sword of justice and striking the monster down with a decisive blow and keeping him there by eternal vigilance. This can be done only by a system which pays as well as demands CASH on delivery.

This system we will adopt and put into operation on the twenty-sixth day of December 1884, after which we will buy and sell positively for cash and produce only and will name such figures on goods as will fully convince every intelligent person that it is to their interest to buy their goods where KING CREDIT finds no quarter, but where the

is radically and permanently established and strictly adhered to. Kindly inviting and soliciting the co-operation of every one in giving this system a thorough trial, we are Hard Times.

Where'er you may roam you will hear men talking about the hard times, and predicting that we are to have a very bad business year.

But then it is a consoling reflection that the time was never known that moneyed men didn't groan about the financial outlook.

Let a couple of banks break, and the merchant who has been doing a prosperous business begins to wear his face long, and to tell his clerks that he has been a heavy looser, as a prelude to tearing down the salaries.

Therefore, it is not well to listen to the song of the bondholder, because business will be brisk, anyway.

The baker will never fail, because people will never stop eating bread.

The barber will never fail, because the lonesome people want to be talked to and cheered up.

The bank will never fail, because the washerman must have a place to deposit her savings.

We might go on and make a list of facts to prove that business must keep up; but we will not do it. We will simply point out a few signs which go to prove that times are not flush.

The times may be adjudged hard—

When a man shovels the snow off his sidewalk—

When the Niagara hackman pawns his watch to get food and drink—

When a man wears a full beard to save the expense of being shaved—

When Charles Francis Adams matches himself against a refrigerator—

When the aged beau dyes his hair and side whiskers with stove blacking—

When the merchant-prince carries his provisions home from the market—

When a woman is willing to cover a summer hat with velvet to last through the winter—

When the man with a short reach is always to be found closest to the free lunch counter—

When you see a plumber wearing Arctic overshoes to conceal the breaks in a pair of Oxford ties—

When the dude cannot change his scarf eight times a day, and have on a louder one every time—

When the poet puts on advertising terminus on a love lyric, and sells it to a tooth-powder establishment—

When a man feels in his vest to satisfy a creditor, and then says in an offhand way: "I'll just send you a check to-morrow"—

When a man makes his calls in full dress, saying that he has just been dining, when in reality his other clothes are not fit to be seen in.—Puck.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Dreadful Mistake.

'There has been a mistake—a dreadful mistake,' she said as she called at the chief clerk's window in the postoffice yesterday.

'What is the matter ma'am?'

'Why, I called here on Saturday for a letter.'

'And I hope you got one.'

'Yes sir. My husband is in Buffalo, you know, and I've been expecting a letter from him every day for a fortnight. He was to send me some money you know, and I was on my last shilling when I got that letter.'

'Well?'

'Well, sir, I hurried right home and opened the letter and out fell a dollar bill. Just think of a loving husband sending his loving wife a dollar bill with which to run the house and preserve her station in society for a whole month!'

'But you put the money in your pocket and burned the letter.'

'Oh, no, sir! I threw the bill into the fire and set out to read the letter. It started off with: 'Dear Madam,' and then I began to suspect something, as my husband always calls me his angel. And then it went on to say: 'So you want a bangle eh? Well, take the enclosed and jingle down town and bangle your old head off and be hanged to you!'

'Well?'

'Well, I looked down at the signature, and it was signed 'Slouch.' Then I saw, sir, that it couldn't be from my husband at all, for it was written from Chicago, while he is in Buffalo. It was addressed to my name, but it couldn't have been for me.'

The clerk received the letter and carefully scanned the envelope, and she handed him a dollar with the remark:

'Put it in the letter, sir, and write on the envelope: 'Opened by mistake—dreadful mistake—but the opener won't give it away.' If you can think of anything else to sooth the poor woman, put it on, too.'

'Yes, I will.'

'For I know exactly how she'll feel about it, and I know if my husband should tell me to bangle my old head off and jingle around I wouldn't have any one know it for a million dollars. Dear me! but I'm so sorry, and it was such a mistake—dreadful mistake.'

Just now there seems to be a fancy among fashionable people to use owls—stuffed owls—as ornaments to set on the tops of bookcases or other suitable places. Common owls stuffed sell at $3 to $8 each, white owls at $15 to $20. A dealer in Boston says: "I have been cleaned out of owls entirely, the demand has been so large of late, and I have several unfilled orders from Chicago still on hand."

Taught Him Politeness.

The pay train stopped at Willow Bend to pay the railroad hands and to liquidate claims for cattle on the track in that section. A gaunt, hungry-looking granger stepped up to the smart young man who was dispensing the cash in the rear end of the car.

"Got my name on your books, Mister?"

"How should I know unless you tell me your name?"

"Kerrect you are. You have got the edge on me there. Well, my name is Rufus McConkey."

"Yes," said the young man, referring to his books; "Mr. McConkey, I have got you down for a hog."

"Have me down for a hog, have you? Well, I'll have you down for a half an hour, and I'll be on top of you makin' it sortin excitin' to you, if you don't revise that expression. Now, say after me: 'Colonel McConkey, School Trustee, Fourth District—Your name, sir, is on this here list as a boney fider creditor of the I. and G. N. Railroad; which the amount are ten dollars, the yally of one spotted Berkshire hog; said amount of ten dollars it do me proud to hand to you. Won't you have a cigar, Colonel?'"

The smart young assistant paymaster repeated after Mr. McConkey word for word, handed Mr. McConkey the ten dollars and then gave him a cigar. Colonel McConkey put the hammer of his six-shooter back to half-cock and then strode out muttering: "Some city chaps think they're smart, but they'll find they has to come out on the peraries to learn perliteness an' grammar."—Austin Siftings.

Wolves.

The excessive coldness of the weather and heavy snow storms are reported ta have driven herds of wolvds from the Carpathian mountains into the cultivated districts, where they have in some cases spread terror among the people. At Homonna, in North Hungary, a pack of 120 wolves entering the village while the inhabitants were at church, and were not driven out until a squadron of Uhlans attacked them with swords and carbines.

From a single grain of wheat planted in 1881, says the Grass Valley (Cal.) "Record," grew twenty-two stalks, each bearing a full head. These yielded 860 grains, 760 of which were planted the next year, producing one-fifth of a bushel of splendid wheat. This was planted last spring, yielding seventeen bushels, making 1,020 pounds of wheat from one grain in three years.

There seems to be a little vein of humor in President Cleveland with all his gravity and seriousness. "You are the first Democratic President I ever saw," remarked a visitor to the President-elect. "I am the first I ever saw myself," was the smiling reply.

'Do you know why you and George remind me of two shades of one color?' asked a young lady of a companion, who had been engaged for a good many years. 'No,' was the reply. 'I'll tell you then; it's because you don't match.'

When you can't say anything in particular in praise of a man you can always fall back on: "A few years ago he was mentioned as a candidate for the county office." This rounds him off in good shape.

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER,

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.

THE GOVERNMENT ENDORSES

The Ameican Agriculturist.

FROM THE TENTH CENSUS, VOL. 8, JUST PUBLISHED

"The American Agriculturist is especially worthy of mention, because of the remarkable success that has attended the unique and untiring efforts of its proprietors to increase and extend its circulation. Its contents are duplicated every month for a German edition, which also circulate widely."

This Tribute is a pleasing incident in the marvellous nearly

HALF A CENTURY

Career of this recognized leading Agricultural Journal of the world.

What it is To-Day.

Six months ago the American Agriculturist entered upon a new career of Prosperity and to-day it is far superior to any similar periodical ever produced in this or any other country. Richer in editorial strength; richer in engravings; printed on finer paper, and presenting in every issue 100 columns of original reading matter from the ablest writers, and nearly 100 illustrations. Dr. George Thurber, for nearly quarter of a century the editor in chief of the American Agriculturist, Joseph Harris, Byron D. Halsted, Col. M. C. Weld, and Andrew S. Fuller, the other leading line Editors, together with the other writers who have made the American Agriculturist what it is to-day, are still at their post.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to. At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

No. 2 for large family..... 9
No. 3 for Hotel and Laundry, ... 10

Over 20,000 in use.

Thousands of ladies are using it, and they speak of it in the highest terms, saying that they would rather dispense with any other household article, than this excellent Washer. No well-regulated family will be without it, as it saves the clothes, saves labor, saves time, saves fuel, saves soap, and makes washday no longer a dread, but rather a pleasant recreation, as much as such is possible.
